SOMERVILLE

Nine persons, all from out of state, were arrested in Somerville and charged with two counts of burglary and exercising control over stolen property. The charges of burglary involved the theft of beer, groceries, drug supplies, a CB base station, and rifle from Lakeview Drive-In Grocery at Birch CreekState Park on Jan. 19. The second count stems from the theft of household items from a residence.

Plant To Double Power

ROCKDALE

The new fourth generating unit at Alcoa's Sandow power plant, to be built and owned by Texas Power & Light Co., will more than double the size of the existing power plant and power not required by Alcoa's Rockdale Works will be available for use by TP&L customers throughout a 51-county area. Construction of the unit will begin this year and completion is scheduled for January 1981.

New Well Flowing

GEORGETOWN

Jubilant Georgetowners are telling of their new city water well, drilled at an old power plant location, which immediately began producting an extra million gallons of water daily. All told, five Georgetown wells now have a 7 1/2 million gallons per day capacity, City Manager Leo Wood reported t o the Coffee Drinkers Association Wednesday morning.

Judge Probates Sentences

HEARNE

Two of four persons arrested in Hearne on Jan. 19 and charged with possession of marijuana-heroin were sentenced in district court on Monday with Judge Don Humble presiding. A Houston woman was convicted of possession of heroin and given a two-year probated sentence. A Hearne man, also convicted for possession of heroin was also given a two-year probated sentence.

Auction Sets Record

LAMPASAS

With higher prices being the rule rather than the exception, Lampasas County's 4-H and FFA members earned a record high dollar figure at the annual auction which climaxed the Lampasas County Junior Livestock Show. The sale of the club projects grossed $39,390.70--more than $12,000 more than the previous record set in 1974.

Meeting To Eye Taxes

ROSEBUD

State Rep. Dan Kubiak and Michael Moeller, executive director of Texans for Equitable Taxation, will speak to school board members and superintendents of all Falls County school districts at a meeting Feb. 1. Taxable property value in Falls was recently increased 125 percent by the Governor's Office of Education Resources, and this means higher taxes unless the Legilsature can come up with a new school bill.

Regional Jail Approved

GATESVILLE

Final specifications, drawings and cost estimates have been ordered for a regional jail to be located in Gatesville and to serve Coryell, Hamilton and Bosque counties. Initial plans of the 10,400-square-foot jail were approved by the executive committee of the Central Texas Council of Governments. Application will be made for a Criminal Justice Division grant to pay 75 percent of the regional jails' construction cost.

BAND OF THE WEST, the Air Force's good will ambassadors, will be performing at the Cameron Area Chamber of Commerce annual banquet in March. The band has performed all over the western part of the United States and in Mexico, and offers an outstanding program. Tickets to the event will be limited, Chamber officials said.

'Band Of West' To Highlight Chamber Banquet

The United States Air Force "Band of the West" will highlight the program for the annual Cameron Area Chamber of Commerce banquet which is set for Thursday, March 17.

The band, officially designated as the 539th Air Force Band, has gained national and international recognition through appearances and engagements in the Western United States and the Republic of Mexico, Chamber officials said.

In addition to being an annual attraction at the Texas State Fair at Dallas, the band is also annually featured at "Old Milwaukee Days" in Wisconsin, the Fiesta de Amistad in Del Rio, and the George Washington celebration observed by Laredo and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

The Dallas Cowboys, Houston Astros, and Houston Oilers have also included the band in their program shows. As the musical representatives of the United States Air Force, the "Band of the West" travels more than 20,000 miles each year playing concerts and parades for towns all over the state.

Because of the great popularity of the band and the fine program to be presented at the banquet, Chamber officials will set a limit on available tickets for this event. Complete details will be announced at a later date.

TP&L Warns CBers About Power Lines

"Beware of nearby power lines!"

That was the word of warning issued today by officials of Texas Power & Light Company to customers who may be planning do-it-yourself installation of base station citizen band radio antennas.

Heavy sales of CB equipment have been reported in recent months, especially with introduction of 40-channel CBs. January 1.

The U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission recently reported 92 deaths and another 156 injuries associated with CB antennas mounted alongside private dwellings on masts or towers. Most of the accidents occurred when the antenna, while being installed or removed, came in contact with power lines.

TP&L officials urge that these safety measures be taken when installation is being made:

1. Avoid situating antennas anywhere near power lines.
2. Tie-off the antenna with a rope so that in the event it should fall during installation or removal it will not come in contact with power lines.

Auditors To Check New County System

A report on progress of the new county bookkeeping system will be presented by Harris, Havens, & Co. to county commissioners at a called meeting next Friday, County Judge O. B. Harden said Friday morning.

Harden said the firm's auditors will be in Cameron next week to check on each county office to see if the firm's recommendations, approved by commissioners, are being followed. The report will cover each office.

In other business at the called meeting Friday, commissioners awarded low bid of $10,609 for two new cars for the sheriff's department to Hefley-Stedman Motor Co. of Cameron. Only other bid was from Gaither Motor Co. of Rockdale for $11,162.

Commissioners also amended the revenue sharing budget to include payment for moving a pole line in Precinct 2 and for repairs to a loader for Precinct 3.

The county judge drew the names of Bill Cunningham, Lee King, and Fred Jones from the last grand jury list to serve with county officials on a grievance board. The board hears complaints about salaries, which are then presented to commissioners.

County Clerk Wayne Wieser presented proposed changes in the hospitalization plan for county employes which were approved by the court. The changes will result in a slight increase in premiums, half of which are paid by the county, and will call for increased benefits for employes.

Commissioner Gerald Vinton reported that Milano School Supt. Charlie Martin asked for a called meeting to presnt a petition from Milano residents calling for an incorporation election. He was told the petition would have to be presented at a regular court meeting.

Elderly Man Found Dead In His Home

An investigation into the cause of death for an elderly Negro man found in his home Thursday is being handled by the city health officer, but no foul play is suspected, police said.

The body of Russell Washington, believed to be in his 80s, was found in his home at 1101 W. 10 by police after they were called to the scene by neighbors who reported that the old man had not been seen for some time. He had been dead for about two weeks.

Firemen Answer Call

A grassfire at the Gene Hillman place off the Hanover road burned about 50 acres of pasture and woods Thursday afternoon. Volunteer firemen were called out at 4 p.m.

Alcoa Reports Net Income Up

PITTSBURGH, PA.

Aluminum Company of America has reported net income of $143.8 million in 1974, or $4.14 a common share. This compares with net income of $64.8 million, or $1.85 a share in 1975.

Return on invested capital (shareholders' equity plus long-term debt) was 5.0 percent in 1976 and 2.3 percent in 1975. Return on shareholders' equity was 8.5 percent in 1976 and 4.1 percent in 1975.

Alcoa reported sales and operating revenues of $2.9 billion in 1976, compared with $2.3 billion in 1975. Income from operations was $11.82 million in 1976 and $54.0 million in 1975.

Shipments of aluminum products in 1976 totaled 1,638,000 tons, compared with 1,340,000 tons in 1975. Primary aluminum production in 1976 was 1,409,000 tons against 1,368,000 tons in 1975.

Alcoa board chairman W. H. Krome George said, "Higher aluminum demand and some improvement in prices helped to increase Alcoa revenues and earnings compared with the recession year of 1975, although the return on invested capital of 5 percent in 1976 was substantially below the level required to modernize and expand facilities.

"Alcoa's 1976 results also benefited from a slower rate of increase in costs, compared with 1975, and from further accomplishments under the company's continuing cost-reduction programs."

To meet demand, the average domestic primary aluminum operating rate was stepped-up from 75 percent of capacity in the first quarter to 88 percent in the fourth quarter, representing essentially all capacity economical to operate at current metal prices, the Alcoa chairman explained.

"Alcoa of Australia, benefiting from stronger worldwide demand for alumnia, had record revenues and net income in 1976. Alcoa's 51 percent share of its earnings increased to $31.0 million in 1976, compared to $13.3 million in 1975."

Three Jailed On Charges Of Burglary

Three Cameron area men are in county jail after being arrested by Temple police Thursday and charged here with the January 26 burglary of a Branchville home.

Samuel Henderson, 21; Melvin Wells, 18; and Ray Charles Whitfield, 18 were brought here from Temple by sheriff's department officers and charged before Justice of the Peace Jess Brock. Bond was set at $5,000 each.

Air conditioners, a typewriter, and other items were reported stolen in the Branchville breakin.

Defendent Pleads Guilty

In district court Jan. 26 Richard Lynn Clark waived indictment and pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary of a habitation and was sentenced to five years in prison. The sentence was suspended with Clark paying court costs, according to County Atty. John B. Henderson Jr.

License Tags Go On Sale At Tax Office

Milam County residents may begin renewing vehicle license tags Tuesday in the tax office in Cameron, Gaither's at Rockdale, and Ideal Motor Co. in Thorndale.

License tag renewal notices have been mailed to residents statewide. All vehicles must bear 1977 stickers on April 1.

The 1977 stickers should be affixed to the upper right corner of the license tag. The 1976 sticker should also remain on the upper left corner.

Persons driving vehicles without 1977 stickers after April 1 are subject to a fine if caught by the Department of Public Safety or other law enforcement officers.

Manpower Funds Due

Milam County will receive $47,275 in Manpower funds as part of a $336,476 grant to the Central Texas Manpower Consortium coming from the U. S. Department of Labor. Six other counties will share in the grant.

The funds will be used to help find jobs for persons unemployed for long periods of time.

The funds will be spent in Coryell, Hamilton, Lampasas, Mills, San Saba and Bell counties.

Money will be spent to place disadvantaged, long-term unemployed people in permanent positions by providing work experience and training opportunities.

All of the jobs to be given qualified people will be in some area of public works, mostly county and city government.

Individual jobs will pay from $2,000 to $10,000 a year, according to Billy Don Everett, program director.

Applicants must have been unemployed for at least 15 weeks and exhausted unemployment insurance benefits.

Moyers To CIA?

Texan Bill Moyers, now a CBS news commentator, is being mentioned as a likely second nominee to assume leadership of Central Intelligence Agency. The President's first nominee, Ted Sorenson, was cut down by the Senate critics who apparently chose the former Kennedy press aide to assert prerogatives over the White House.

Moyers is not seeking an appointment in this Administration, according to reliable sources. But his penchant for public service during the Johnson Years and his job as press secretary to Lyndon Johnson leave small doubt he would take a new federal appointment.

Senate critics "X'd" the Sorenson nomination from left and right. A pacifist who was an early "hawk" in the Cold War, he simply was vulnerable, acknowledging as a researcher he used classified documents for background in a book.

It's not likely he would have won confirmation if he had been Sherlock Holmes and Teddy Roosevelt rolled into one.

Outgoing director is Texan George Bush, a Republican, who served as UN ambassador and U. S. spokesman in China after a tour as congressman. He entered CIA when it was torn with criticism relating to Watergate, among other things.

The new man, if it is Moyers, will have a continuing problem in administering an international agency which all but finances and runs itself. It owns profit-making airlines in Southeast Asia, or did, and has agents moving in and out of every capital in the world. And we should add, just like other major powers.

The man who runs this apparatus only begins to deal with CIA problems when he satisfies Capitol Hill. He must supply the President with accurate intelligence summaries daily on just about everything.

This Texan is an able man, has worked for years with one of the consummate politicians of U. S. history and is a good pick if Washington wants that kind of man at the top.

Rebates Big Boost....

City of Cameron drew $7,487.65 to lead area communities, but barely.

Lott, Texas, received a tax rebate of $7,473.58, and this is a town of approximately 1100 people.

The rest followed: Rockdale, $2,842.76 and Rosebud $2,009.47. Smaller-towns Rogers, Buckholts, and Thorndale received no rebates the past month.

Cameron's monthly rebate seems to average on a current annual basis about $85,000 a year, which is twice what it was only a few years ago.

None of this hurts city governments in a time of modernization and growth.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

BILL REVIVES CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CORPS

Rep. Robert Duncan (Ore.) ". . .Today I introduced legislation to revive the Civilian Conservation Corps. . .

"In the darkest days of the Depression-ridden 1930s, the Roosevelt administration recruited an army of young men from the Nation's troubled cities and sent them to work in the forests of the West. At its height, in 1935, the Civilian Conservation Corps numbered half a million men, scattered in more than 2,500 army-styled camps, under supervision of the old War Department. Inspired by that program and motivated by the severe unemployment problems facing this country, I have introduced a bill to revive the CCC.

"There are three principle objectives which this legislation will accomplish. . .

"First. Our outdoor recreational facilities have deteriorated and many camp grounds and picnic facilities have been closed and abandoned.

"Second. Millions of areas lie fallow and unproductive because we have not spent the money and made the effort to replant. . .

"Third. Millions of acres of rangeland are today incapable of carrying the allotments of livestock they should because they have been overgrazed and the waterholes stamped dry. . .

"Millions of dollars are needed to replant the national forests and rangelands, to build drift fences, to drill wells, to build waterholes, to control grazing patterns, to build trails, picnic facilities, campsites, and footbridges. . .

"I believe my bill can alleviate a good portion of those three major problems. More important are the benefits to be derived by the Nation from the growth of the individuals who serve in the Civilian Conservation Corps. . .

"President Carter made references to a CCC-type program in his debates with President Ford. . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

1977 differs from the 1930s. Today the American taxpayer has invested millions of dollars in AMTRAK and CONRAIL. Rather than build trails and picnic grounds the CCC might be put to better use. Train derailments are injuring and killing Americans. Thousands of miles of trackage is unsafe at any speed. The CCC might be recruited to rebuild railroad right-of-ways so passenger traffic on Amtrak and freight traffic on Conrail be made safer and faster schedules be maintained.

The Family And Morality

By Christopher Lasch

Editor's Note: This is the third of 16 articles in the series, "Moral Choices in Contemporary Society." In this article, Christopher Lasch of the University of Rochester traces the decline in the role of the family as the primary agency for socializing the young. These articles, which explore the controversial moral dilemmas that perplex Americans today, were written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The survival of any form of human society depends on two things, the production of the necessities of life and the production of the labor force itself.

Reproduction includes not merely the propagation of the species but the care and nurture of the young--education, training, discipline, and cultural transmission.

In the early days of capitalism, the work of socialization took place largely in the family. The patriarchal family, in which the father's authority was unquestioned, was responsible not only for imparting ethical norms--standards of right and wrong--but also for instructing the child in the prevailing social rules. It thus served as the primary agency for shaping the child's character.

The capitalist made little effort to interfere with this central position of the family. He attempted to supervise his workers' lives on the job, but his control ended when the workers left the factory at closing time. Only a handful of employers in the early 20th Century understood that the success of the mass production economy now required not only the capitalistic organization of production but the organization of consumption and leisure as well.

One of the first business leaders to recognize the need for a new kind of social education for the young was Edward A. Filene, the Boston department store magnate. "Mass production," he said in 1919, "demands the education of the masses; the masses must learn to behave like human beings in a mass production world. . ." In other words, the mass production of commodities in ever-increasing abundance demands on mass market to absorb them.

TRANSORMATION OF THE FAMILY

Today, the "education" of masses of people has proved to be one of the most important elements not only in the emergence of an economy based on mass consumption, but in the transformation of the family. In the course of bringing Filene's bargain-basement "culture" to the consumers of it, the advertising industry, the school, and the mental health and welfare services have taken over many of the socializing functions of the home. The ones that remain have been placed under the direction of modern science and technology.

While glorifying domestic life as the last haven of intimacy, these agencies of mass tuition have propagated the view that the family cannot provide for its own needs without outside assistance.

The advertising industry insists that the health and safety of the young, the satisfaction of their daily nutritional requirements, their emotional and intellectual development, and their ability to compete with their peers for popularity and success all depend on consumption of vitamins, Band-Aids, cavity-preventing toothpaste, cereals, mouthwashes, and laxatives.

"Domestic science" urges the housewife and mother to systemiatize housekeeping and to give up the rule-of-thumb procedures of earlier generation. Modern medicie orders the abandonment of home remedies. The mental health movement teaches that maternal "instinct" is not to be trusted in childrearing.

Even the sex instinct has come to be surrounded by a growing body of scientific analysis and commentary, according to which sexual "fulfillment" depends on study, technique, discipline, control.

THE NEW SOCIAL WELFARE

The diffusion of the new ideology of social welfare and "civilized" consumption has had the effect of a self-fulfilling prophecy.

By convincing the housewife, and finally ever her husband as well, to rely on outside technology and the advice of outside experts, the apparatus of mass tuition--the successor to the church in our secularized society--has undermined the family's capacity to provide for itself. The agencies of mass socialization have thereby justified the continuing expansion of health, education and welfare services.

Yet rising rates of crime, juvenile delinquency, suicide, and mental breakdown belatedly suggest to many experts, even to many welfare workers, that welfare agencies furnish a poor substitute for the family. Dissatisfaction with the results of socialized welfare and the growing expense of maintaining it now prompt efforts to shift health and welfare functions back to the home.

THE DEMISE OF FAMILY AUTHORITY

It is too late, however, to call for a revival of the patriarchal family or even of the less authoritarian family that replaced it. The socialization of reproduction has fatally weakened not only the father's authority but that of the mother as well.

Instead of imposing their own standards of right and wrong, now thoroughly confused, parents influenced by psychiatry and the doctrines of progressive education seek to understand the "needs" of the young and to avoid painful confrontations. Instead of guiding the child, the older generation struggles to "keep up with the kids," to master their incomprehensible jargon, and even to imitate their dress and manners in the hope of preserving a youthful appearance and outlook.

Under these conditions, children often grow up without forming strong identifications with their parents. Yet it was precisely these identifications that formerly provided the psychological basis of conscience or superego--that element of the psyche which internalizes social prohibitions and makes submission to them a moral duty. Lacking an internalized sense of duty, children become "other-directed" adults, more concerned with their own pleasure and the approval of others than with leaving their mark on the world.

The ease with which children escape emotional entanglements with the older generations leaves them with a feeling not of liberation but of inner emptiness. Young people today often reporach their parents with indifference or neglect, and many of them seek warmth and security in submission to spiritual healers, gurus, and prophets of political or psychic transformation.

Permissive styles of childrearing, instead of encouraging self-reliance and autonomy, as might have been expected, appear instead to intensify the appetite for dependence.

SUPERSTATE

The only alternative to the superego, it has been said, is the superstate. Formerly, the absorption of parental values enabled the young to overcome childhood dependency and to become morally autonomous.

Today, the wish for dependence persists into later life, laying the psychological foundations of new forms of authoritarianism.

At first glance, the decline of conscience might appear to make it more difficult for the authorities to impose themselves on the rest of the population. Not only parents, but all those who wield established authority--teachers, magistrates, priests--have suffered a loss of "credibility."

Unable to inspire loyalty or even to command obedience, they therefore attempt to impose their will through psychological manipulation. Government becomes the art of personnel management, which treats social unrest as a kind of sickness, curable by means of therapeutic intervention.

Yet, in many ways the new forms of authoritarianism and social control work more effectively than the old ones. As religion gives way to the new anti-religion of mental health, authority identifies itself not with what ought to be but with what actually is, not with principles but with reality. The individual's conduct is governed less by his superego than by his conception of reality; resistance to the status quo becomes not "unprincipled, but "unrealistic."

Political authority no longer rests on the family, which formerly mediated between the state and the individual. Indeed the state has accommodated itself so well to the weakening of parental authority that efforts to strengthen the family are likely to be perceived as threats to political stability.

Through the proliferating apparatus of mass socialization, the state now controls the individual ore effectively than it controlled him through appeals to his conscience. Even though the new metods of social control might exact a mounting economic, social, and psychological price, those methods will be discarded only when the price threatens to become altogether unbearable.

State Tax Funds Show Increase

AUSTIN

Comptroller Bob Bullock announced Thursday that the state's major tax funds brought in just over $4 billion in revenue last year, a 16.8 percent increase over calendar year 1975.

Natural gas tax revenues were up a whopping 48.1 percent and sales tax collections rose 18.2 percent, nearly double the national average for the year.

Revenue from the motor vehicle sales tax was $27.59 million, up 31.6 percent over 1975 and franchise tax collections were up 35.5 percent, according to the analysis released by Bullock.

"Overall, 1976 was a pretty good year for the businessman and worker alike in Texas," Bullock said. "Consumers had more money and they spent it in record amounts for such luxuries as new automobiles."

In his revenue estimate release last November, Bullock projected that the new Legislature will have an additional $2.9 billion in revenue available for the coming budget period.

This is 34 percent more than was available to the 1975 Legislature for writing the current two-year state budget.

Memorial Gifts Sought For Heart Association

The phone suddenly tumbled from George's hand. He slumped to the floor. Arm, leg, speech--all were affected. He fell into a coma a few minutes later.

George never awakened. He never knew what hit him. At 57, he died quickly from a stroke. The triggering factor: a blood clot in a brain artery.

George was one of more than a million Americans who will die this year from some form of heart and blood vessel disease. And, he was one of the 23 million persons in this country who suffered high blood pressure, a leading cause of stroke.

After citing this example of the premature death and disability caused by cardiovascular disease, Mrs. Dan Kubiak, Memorials Chairman of the Milam County Heart Association, said there is a way to fight back at heart attack and stroke.

"The American Heart Association dedicates all of its efforts to the prevention of heart and blood vessel diseases through research, education, and community programs," Mrs. Kubiak said.

A meaningful way to help combat heart disease is for individuals or groups to make memorial gifts to the Milam County Heart Association in honor of loved ones whose lives were lost to heart disease, she added.

She pointed out that memorial contributions help support, maintain, and expand the Heart Association's programs such as mass high blood pressure screenings, life-saving emergency care, and the promotion of vital research.

Although memorial gifts often are made in the memory of a heart disease victim, they also can mark anniversaries, birthdays, and other special occasions, the Heart Association spokesman added.

"When you make a memorial gift," Mrs. Kubiak said "send the name or names of the persons to be honored, your name and address, and the name and address of those to be notified, along with a check or money order to the Milam County Heart Association, c/o Mrs. Dan Kubiak, Rockdale, Texas 76567.

Memorial gifts are quickly acknowledged with a card naming the donor and the person in whose memory the gift is made. The donor receives a receipt, and the amount of the gift is always kept confidential.

"We are grateful that people find Heart memorial gifts such a meaningful way of expressing condolence at a difficult time. And we always appreciate any contributions to the memorial program through the year," Mrs. Kubiak said. "Only you--the public--can strike back at heart disease by remembering our loved ones through the Heart Association's memorial gifts program."

Fort Worth To Host Cattle Raisers Convention

FORT WORTH

Fort Worth, the first center of Texas livestock activity, will host the 100th annual convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association March 20-23, says TSCRA President J.A. Whittenburg III of Amarillo.

All meetings and much of the entertainment will be held in the Tarrant County Convention Center adjacent to downtown. TSCRA is headquartered in Fort Worth.

A record attendance of more than 2,000 is expected for the historic convention and second annual trade show. Appropriately, the best possible program of speakers and entertainment is being arranged, Whittenburg says.

Headlining the slate of impressive speakers are Ronald Reagan, syndicated columnist and broadcaster, and Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe, keynote speaker on Tuesday, March 22. Reagan, twice governor of California and onetime presidential candidate, will address the kickoff luncheon Monday, March 21.

Other speakers include Emma Lee Collier, president of the Texas CowBelles from Wichita Falls; Tad Sanders, general manager of the Competitive Livestock Marketing Association in Kansas City, Mo.; Bud Middaugh, president of the U.S. Meat Export Federation in Denver; and TSCRA President Whittenburg. Announcement of additional speakers is forthcoming.

TSCRA will kickoff its convention Sunday afternoon, March 20 with the TSCRA Centennial Beef Cook-off, a statewide competition guaranteed to tantalize the appetites of convention-goers.

The second annual trade show, a huge success last year at Galveston, will be bigger, more interesting and open throughout the four days. The latest livestock equipment, products, and service will be on display.

Wind Chill Factor Will Affect Comfort Of Hunters

On a calm day the properly clothed outdoorsman can withstand a great degree of cold. But let the wind blow even slightly and heat and energy loss become critical.

The 1976-77 Texas winter already is going in the books as one of the coldest in years, and with duck, goose, and crane seasons open until the latter part of January and quail hunting until mid-February, outdoorsmen should be concerned with the wind chill factor and how it can affect their comfort and even survival.

Officials at the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department say wind chill can be critical to hunters and fishermen. A temperature of 10 degrees on a day when the wind is blowing some 20 miles per hour produces a wind chill factor of -25 degrees, at which exposed flesh may freeze within one minute.

Hunters Turn To Black Powder And Muzzle Loaders For Special Hunting Season

Coonskin caps and Indian moccasins may be in vogue next fall among Texas hunters if State Rep. Fred Head's HB 326 is enacted creating a black-powder hunting season.

Hunting wild game with these Daniel Boone era rifles has become popular recently, perhaps a part of our interest in the past.

Head said that Texans especially are turning to these single shot muzzle loading firearms and they now go out of State to places like Colorado which have special black-powder seasons.

HB 326 creates a special two-week season just before the opening of the regular big game season in November. During this two-week period black-powder hunters would have the woods to themselves.

Trespassing Heads Citation List For TP&W In 1976

Trespassing to hunt headed the list of citations completed by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens as of the end of December 1976, the last full month of deer hunting over most of the state.

Of the total 2,765 citations issued by wardens for violations of state game laws, 423 were for trespassing on private propety to hunt. Other major violations included: 375 citations for untagged deer, 364 for hunting at night, and 363 for discharging a firearm from a public road.

P&WD law enforcement field operations chief Dexter Harris said complaints filed for trespassing to hunt usually are initated by landowners, and represent violations against private property instead of the state.

Game law violations in 1975 for an identical period were much the same as in 1976--a total of 2,742 citations completed with the same types of violations constituting the majority of cases.

LONDON

Nearly one in every two cars sold in Britain last month was foreign, representing a surge in imports which has British automakers worried. Official figures show that imported cars took 46 percent of the British market in December, an all-time record. Up from 30.8 percent in December 1975, the import figure caused disquiet in British government circles. But industry sources had some consoling words. They said an increasing number of cars previously manufactured wholly in Britain are now completed in other parts of Europe and are regarded as imports.

British negotiator Ivor Richard has completed the first phase of his Rhodesia peace mission with the initiative beset by uncertainty in both black and white Africa. Over the past weeks Richard, chairman of the deadlocked Rhodesia conference in Geneva, has toured six African countries. He has won black African assurances that the guerilla war in Rhodesia will end once an interim government acceptable to them has been set up there.

LIMA

The Soviet Union has pulled off its first major arms deal in Latin America outside Cuba with the sale of a fleet of jet fighters to the Peruvian air force. The deal, which fits into Peru's scheme to modernize its armed forces, has brought a new set of political and military factors to play in the Pacific coast region of the continent. From Peru's point of view it underlines a new independence in arms purchases in the region which has traditionally bought from the United States and other Western powers.

TINDOUF, ALGERIA

Thousands of refugees from former Spanish Sahara huddle among the barren rocks and sand of western Algeria. They continue to trickle into Algeria from the former Spanish colony, where war is being waged by nationalist guerrillas against new Moroccan and Mauritanian rulers. Spain divided the phosphate-rich desert territory between Morocco and Mauritania last February. But guerillas continue the struggle for the complete independence of the area, also known as Western Sahara.

WASHINGTON

Over the past eight years, Henry Kissinger, diplomat, has often been described as Henry Kissinger, juggler, a spinner of plates on long poles who entrances his audience into forgetting all else--so long as the plates did not crash. The description is directly opposite to Mr. Kissinger's image of himself. As senior foreign policy adviser of the United States from 1969 to 1976, he likes to think that he, unlike his; predecessors and rivals, was laying a firm foundation for future peace, and not merely temporizing to forestall an inveitable conflict.

MADRID

As Spain slowly breaks the spell of almost 40 years of dictatorship, divorce may be the next taboo to fall. The legislation of divorce, unthinkable while General Franco lived, is being considered by a government commission set up to review the social legislation he left behind. The future of at least 200,000 Spaniards, legally spearated but barred from remarrying, hangs on its decision. In public a fierce debate ha s already begun.

NEW YORK

Peter Townsend, the man who rocked Britain almost two decades ago by wanting to marry Princess Margaret, says he longs to live in an English speaking country again. But the country would be the United States, not the Britain he left 18 years ago for France. The Battle of Britain ace described himself as the sort of Englishman, who while loving his country, cannot live there. But he says that after 18 years of life in France, speaking French non-stop, his appetite is whetted for life in America.

MANAUS, BRAZIL

Women from Brazil's primitive Indian tribes rebelled against male supermacy ages before the women's liberation campaign made the headlines. Even today, the Indian women periodically declare a sex strike, take up bows and arrows, don the feathered headdresses of the tribal chieftains and assume the role of men in the community. Expelling males from the village square, they imitate their rituals, receive women from other tribes, hold pow-wows and wrestling matches--and in some cases even beat up the men.

NEW YORK

"It's a hell of a mess," said a federal environmental official as two tankers flying the Liberian flag went aground early in December in or near U. S. waters. And that was just the beginning. By the time the year ended there were three more maritime disasters involving Liberian flag ships, including the grounding of the 23-year-old Argo Merchant ship near Massachusetts, which left the U. S. with the biggest oil spill in its history. Now authorities on various fronts said they had had enough and threatend to control foreign vessels docking here.

CANBERRA

Britain's Queen Elizabeth will be given more stringent security protection on her visit here in March than on any of her five pervious tours of Australia. The measures stem directly from a year of demonstrations against the governor-general of Australia, Sir John Kerr. The governor-general is the British monarch's representative in Australia whichis part of the commonwealth of former British territories of which the queen is the formal head. The protests against Sir John began after he dismissed Labor Prime Minister Gough Whitlam in November 1975.

VOA VISTA, BRAZIL

In Brazil's far north, so the legend goes, a mighty volcano once spread havoc and destruction throughout the area. The chieftains of thd primitive Indian tribes hurled three living virgins into the boiling crater. The volcano's fury was placated, the eruption subsided,, and in its place spread out an infinite field of diamonds. Whether the legend is true or not, diamonds are very much a fact of everyday life in the area where Brazil, Venezuela, and Guyana meet north of the Equator.

NEWS Of Senior Citizens

NEW RECOGNITION FOR ACCOMPLISHMENT

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life for which the first was made."
—Robert Browning, 1864

Older Americans — those men and women over the age of 65 — are a valuable segment of our society. They often make important contributions to the welfare of all Americans — yet rarely receive the recognition richly deserved.

That's why the National Council on the Aging (NCOA) and Kentucky Fried Chicken Corporation have combined their resources to offer a special awards program for older Americans. The "Senior Citizen of the Month" award is a newly established public service endeavor to honor older Americans who effectively demonstrate "Accomplishment knows no age"... that age 65 isn't a magic number signalling the end of productive years.

The NCOA is a non-profit organization that serves as a central national resource for planning, information, technical consultation and materials for older peop'e. "We're extremely pleased to be participating in this effort to honor older Americans," observed Jack Ossofsky, executive director of the NCOA. "The program is in keeping with the goals and philosophy of our organization."

Colonel Harland Sanders, who founded Kentucky Fried Chicken at age 66, pioneered the concept of fast-food franchising. The KFC System underwrites the awards program as a tribute to its founder — one of America's foremost senior citizens. "Older Americans can and do make valuable contributions to American life," noted the Colonel, "and the awards are a fine way of making more people aware of that fact."

A national panel of distinguished Americans representing a variety of disciplines vote for the monthly winners. Among the judges are former Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, former Senator Margaret Chase Smith, broadcasters Hugh Downs and Art Linkletter, journalists Ann Landers, Pia Lindstrom and Elizabeth Janeway and NCOA president Albert Abrams.

The actual award presented to each winner is a handsome gold medallion. On one side the phrases "Senior Citizen of the Month" and "Accomplishment is Ageless" appear above and below a specially commissioned drawing representative of America's senior citizens. The name of the winner and the date are engraved between the logos of the cosponsors on the reverse side.

The program is national in scope and candidates are selected from all walks of life. And the National Council on the Aging and Kentucky Fried Chicken are always looking for individuals deserving of the honor. Anyone 65-years-old or older who has continued to be active in his/her community or career is a potential candidate for the award. Recommendations for the honor can be made by writing:

How many square feet of floor space are cleaned each day in American hotels? About 625,500,000 square feet!

The Boston Tea Party was thought of in a hotel—Boston's Hancock Tavern.

Early American innkeepers were sometimes exceedingly strict! At the Marboro Hotel in Boston patrons were required to attend religious ceremonies twice a day and were not allowed to smoke.

Travelers to Europe can enjoy a combination of American standards and European style in Holiday Inn hotels. The cooking is by trained local cooks, but the quality of the food is all up to American standards.

"Pajama Tops" To Show In Austin

"Pajama Tops," starring glamorous June Wilkinson, will premiere at Austin's Country Dinner Playhouse on Tuesday, February 8 and will run until Sunday, March 13.

Miss Wilkinson played the role of Babette on Broadway and has successfully toured with the show for 14 years.

June Wilkinson has had a fantastic career in television and motion pictures, as well as theatre. She played opposite Jeff Chandler in "Thunder in the Sun," and has enlivened such television shows as "Gary Moore," "77 Sunset Strip," and "Alcoa theatre."

She was also selected by Hugh Hefner as Playboy's favorite Playgirl and has been featured in the magazine at least six times.

"Pajama Tops" is a translation of a French farce and deals in high camp confusion, hilarity, and mistaken identity. Georges is married to Yvonne, who doesn't know that his mistress is Babette, who is married to Jacques, who becomes enamored of Georges' maid, Claudine. The goings on of this bunch of highly unlikely characters is Georges and Yvonne's country home sets the scene for the hilariously funny "Pajama Tops."

Clothes-Key To Keeping Warmer

Wearing the right amount and type of clothes is the key to keeping warm--but how much is enough?

Mrs. Beck y Culp, area clothing specialist, points out that if a woman replaces a skirt with pants, she will feel 1.5 degrees F. warmer. And wearing a full slip with a dress adds 1 degree F., while a light long-sleeved sweater adds 1.7 degrees F., and a heavy long-sleeved sweater adds 3.7 degrees F.

This specialist is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Serive, the Texas A&M University System.

'If a man replaces a summer-weight jacket with a winter-weight one, he will feel 2.5 degrees F. warmer. Also, replacing a short-sleeve shirt with a long-sleeve one adds 8/10 of a degree.

"Accessories even add extra warmth. If a woman wears nylon hose, she adds 1/10 of a degree, while wearing enclosed shoes rather than sandals adds 2/10 of a degree. For men, a necktie adds 2/10 of a degree, and replacing ankle-length socks with knee-length adds 6/10 of a degree," she explained.

Natural fiber such as cotton and wool keep the body warmer than synthetics because they allow persipiration to evaporate as vapor. Synthetics tends to trap perspiration, requiring the body to work overtime to evaporate the accumulated moisture, the specialist said.

"Clothing worn in several light weight layers is warmer than one heavy one. Air is trapped between each layer, insulating the body. For example, a lined garment is warmer than an unlined one.

"Garment designs that fit close to the body where warm air cannot escape or let cold air in are warmer. Examples include turtlenecks, ribbed or buttoned cuffs, belts and tucked in blouses or shirts,;' she said.

CORRECTION

In the Jan. 24 issue of the Herald in the club news I reported that Cameron had the largest Business and Professional Women's Club in the U.S. This is not true. The Business and Professional Women's Club is the largest in the United States. Cameron is the only one with a club house to meet in is the way it should be been worded.

What's a fair price?

Just about everyone could agree to the desirability of "fair prices" on everything that's bought and sold. Disagreements begin on the best methods of deciding on what is a "fair price."

Many well-meaning voices are being raised in support of a controlled economy in which "fair price" will be set by legislation. In that way the argument goes, no one would have to pay more than a given item is worth.

The immediate question is, of course, who is to be given the authority to decide on these "fair prices." Is the legislature suddenly to acquire magic, infallible power to set prices on thousands of items that will be "fair" to both the seller and the buyer? Most unlikely. Should the buyer set them? The seller? It seems obvious that neither would be entirely unbiased.

But how about a group composed of both sellers and buyers to decide on prices that were fair? Doesn't that seem to be the ideal solution? It is — and it works. It's called a "free economy," part of the American system of free enterprise. It operates on the premise that a "fair price" is what the customer is willing to pay and for which the merchant is willing to sell.

The present American standards of lifestyle have been created, in large part, through our unique free enterprise system in which prices for goods have been set by buyers willing to pay enough — so that others have been inspired to develop and make new and useful products.

And that's the only price that's truly "fair."

This is #5 in a series of messages on "the free enterprise system" to be brought to you by Ralph Wilson Plastics Company, manufacturers of Wilson Art brand laminated plastic and other products of quality and value for the building industry.

Value . . . price. Supply . . . demand.
The two-way street that works for us all.
